

Life Membership Nomination Form

INTRODUCTION

AFIA awards Life Membership to members who have made an outstanding contribution to the organisation, and through it, the fodder industry. Life Membership is viewed by AFIA as a major achievement, with awards presented at the annual National Fodder Conference.

To be eligible for a Life Membership award, members have to:

- have been a member of AFIA, or a sponsor representative, for a minimum of 10 consecutive years*.
- have undertaken an official role with AFIA or have provided significant input to AFIA and its membership by giving 'above and beyond' over an extended period of time.
- have been an AFIA advocate over the period of their membership and, in doing so, contributed to AFIA achieving its mission.

* Life Membership may also be considered for past AFIA members (i.e. retired/resigned) under special consideration for the substantial contribution previously made by these individuals to AFIA and the Australian fodder industry.

Life Membership is the highest honour that AFIA can bestow upon its members and as such, it is not readily awarded but rather, it is an award of esteem and prestige.

Life Member entitlements

- AFIA Membership will be granted in perpetuity to the Life Member without the application of an annual membership fee.
- Member and voting entitlements will remain as per the category of membership prior to the awarding of the Life Membership.
- A Life Membership cannot be transferred and ceases upon the resignation of the individual from AFIA or the death of that individual.

Nomination process

As per AFIA's Constitution (Item 7.3), nominations for AFIA Life Membership must be received and reviewed by the AFIA Board, and if approved, included in the Association's Annual General Meeting agenda for approval by members.
